Cold Shoulder Given Draft Compromise

ENLISTMENTS FAIL TO GAIN SENATE FAVOR

Administration Leaders Go Ahead on Conscription Measure Drive.

MALONEY PLAN HIT

But He Declares Proposal For Delay Attracts Much Support.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Administration leaders turned a cold shoulder today to talk of a compromise in the senate fight over conscription.

Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic floor leader, expressed the opinion to reporters that conscription and voluntary enlistments could not be linked successfully in such a system as that offered by Senator Maloney (D. Conn.) as a substitute for the Burke-Wadsworth bill.

Maloney would require the registration of all men from 21 through 30, as would the Burke-Wadsworth bill but he would delay the draft until Jan. 1 while voluntary enlistments were sought. If these enlistments did not fill the army's quota, conscription would be ordered.

(Army enlistments totaled 23,442 in June and 31,958 in July, a peacetime record. The army's strength was 270,183 on July 31, and will be brought to 322,922 as quickly as possible.)

Maloney said his proposal appeared to be attracting increasing support, despite administration opposition and the reluctance of conscription opponents to agree that the draft might be needed while the nation was at peace.

One of the latter group, Senator Nye (R., N.D.) said he was willing to have men from 21 through 30 registered in order to have the draft machinery ready if war came, but could see no reason for abandoning the traditional American peacetime policy of voluntary enlistments.

He predicted that supporters would find it necessary to compromise the Burke-Wadsworth bill before they could obtain senate approval.

This view was echoed in private by one administration strategist, who said he had no doubt that some sort of conscription bill would be voted by the chamber. He said it was "touch and go," however, whether the Maloney proposal or some similar compromise would be adopted.

The senate will resume debate on the Burke-Wadsworth measure Monday after a week-end recess. The discussion began yesterday.

Marriott to Check Racket 'Links' Here

Prosecutor Confers With Huron Officer, Says He Plans Action.

Richland County Prosecutor G. W. Marriott today said he intended to investigate reports that the numbers racket in this area is controlled and operated by a Mansfield combine.

A man arrested in Norwalk Thursday on a charge of selling tickets on a game of chance was said to have named several Mansfielders as operators of the numbers game in Huron and surrounding counties.

Marriott said he talked by telephone to Huron County Prosecutor Rex F. Bracy yesterday and learned that Bracy had taken a statement from the man who is being held in jail in Norwalk.

Following his conversation with Bracy the nature of which he declined to divulge, Marriott said the report concerning the operations of the policy racket from Mansfield headquarters was "enough to warrant an investigation."

"I'm interested in this and want to find out something about it," he stated.

He said he planned to talk to the 19-year-old youth who was taken into custody in Norwalk and wanted also to discuss further with Bracy the Huron county connections.

Althoughr he refused to say that he intended to go to Norwalk, he indicated that his investigation would be launched from connections in that city.

Bracy said yesterday that the arrest of the youth was the start of a drive to "take the numbers racket out of Huron county," the operators of which, he declared, had Mansfield and Chicago connections.

Woodruff indicated the retiring postmaster general would report here after a vacation and said his headquarters would be in Wilmington.

Mansfield Derby Winner Gets Set For Dash Sunday

Jack Thompson, 15, of Indiana avenue, Lincoln Heights, is in Akron today waiting the starting signal to participate in the All-American and International Soap Box Derby at Derby Downs Sunday.

Jack, who is the guest of The News-Journal at Akron, won the right to compete in the classic by winning the fourth annual Mansfield Soap Box Derby Wednesday.

Thompson arrived in Akron yesterday at the Mayflower hotel and today was ready for a sight-seeing tour of Akron in company with 130 other champions from the United States, Hawaii and the Panama Canal Zone.

Tonight Thompson and the other youngsters will attend a motion picture show or a night baseball game. After the races, expected to be witnessed by at least 50,000 spectators, the boys will attend a banquet at the Mayflower hotel.

A post card from Thompson today said "Thanks for everything. Am having a swell time." It took Jack four years to win the Mansfield championship. His racer, the "Rollin' Star," was being inspected today by Derby officials at Akron.

O. S. R. FUGITIVES ELUDE CAPTURE

One of Pair Fleeing Orchard At Institution Reported Seen In Bellville.

Joining in a search for two Mansfield reformatory inmates who escaped yesterday afternoon, Richland county deputy sheriffs investigated a report that one of the fugitives was seen in Bellville, but they found the suspect was only a transient.

The fugitives are Jack Dyer, 19, of Alger, Hardin county, and Paul Sharrock, 26, Newscomerstown. They fled the reformatory shortly after noon Friday while working in the orchard.

Meanwhile, it was learned that Eugene Finney, Columbus, who escaped last Saturday, had been apprehended today in Columbus where he is being held for reformatory officials.

Deputy Sheriffs Frank Robinson and Glenn P. Freeman went to Bellville this morning after a housewife reported a man wearing clothing resembling the reformatory uniforms had attempted to get into her home when she refused to go to the door.

The officers questioned the man and learned he was a transient who had gone to the home seeking a "hand out." He had been to a number of other houses along the same street, Freeman said.

Dyer, younger of the escaped pair, entered the reformatory last Jan. 21 to serve a one-to-20-year term for forgery. Sharrock, his companion, was received at the reformatory Jan. 23 and was serving a one-to-15-year term for burglary.

Gladys Informs Fred She Stands For Draft Plan

CHICAGO—(INS)—Gladys went on record today as definitely in favor of compulsory military service, and so advised Fred in no uncertain terms.

A "personal" in the classified advertising section of a Chicago newspaper yesterday read:

"Gladys: Conscription passes—You lose me for a yr., Prof. to your senator now. Fred."

Gladys' answer, appearing today, read:

"Fred: Are you man or mouse? A country worth living in is worth fighting for. Don't be a panty waist. Gladys."

Which apparently left it up to Fred and congress.

The unit will return Aug. 31. It will be stationed at Camp Warrens, near Sparta, and will be under the command of Maj. Gen. Gilson D. Light of the 37th Division, who is also adjutant general of Ohio. There will be about 12,000 Ohio guardsmen taking part in the maneuvers.

SPEED MUNITION PLANT SURVEY

M'Gregor Says County Site Will Receive Completed Check In 30 Days.

Within 30 days the United States war department will have a completed survey on a possible Richland county site for a munitions plant, one of a chain of such plants to be built in mid-western United States, it was learned today.

Congressman J. Harry McGregor advised The News-Journal by telephone from Washington today that officials of the Pennsylvania railroad had told him the survey was now in progress.

No decision on the location of the plant is to be made until the survey is complete. The railroad is making surveys of several locations along its lines, at the request of the government.

Word from Loudonville today said that two sites in that vicinity had been suggested. One is a 2,500-acre site between Loudonville and Hayesville and the other is south of Pleasant Hill dam.

Both of these sites are said to have large available water supplies, supulated as a necessary requisite.

The Richland county site believed to be under consideration is in the northeast section of the county, near the Pennsylvania right-of-way. It was learned. Water, electric power and transportation facilities are required before any site can be considered by the war department, and no site within five miles of a town will be considered.

McGregor's information came from J. E. Phillips, vice president of the Pennsylvania system. Phillips said the surveys were being made by E. J. Israel, Pittsburgh, industrial agent for the railroad, and a government representative from Philadelphia.

WPA DEFENDS WORK ON 4TH STREET JOB

Indicates Contractor's to Blame For Slow Progress Of Paving Project.

SAYS EQUIPMENT LATE

Stander Answers Claims With Statement That State Turned Down Sand.

The WPA today disclaimed responsibility for delay on the Fourth street paving project by disputing a recent statement by the Mansfield Asphalt Paving company that the contracting firm was not to blame for the slow progress.

This was disclosed by M. M. Carothers, WPA's information representative in Columbus who contradicted reports that work had been slowed up in getting the street graded.

Carl H. Stander, president of the company, said a week ago that a series of unanticipated difficulties had delayed WPA in getting the street ready for concrete between North Diamond and North Mulberry streets.

He said that basements extending under the street had to be reinforced and that relaying the white way lighting conduit also prevented an early start on concrete pouring.

Carothers said today that he had been informed by WPA engineers on the job that on the date Stander made the statement there were three blocks—the section between Diamond and Mulberry streets—ready for work, but that the contractor had not moved equipment on the project.

Carothers, however, gave no explanation why the Walnut street intersection was not completed.

City officials said yesterday that

CUDAHY LEAVES

Ambassador to Belgium Sticks To Interview Statements.

LONDON—(AP)—John Cudahy, U. S. ambassador to Belgium who created a sensation in London by advocating that the United States feed Nazi-occupied countries, left by plane for Lisbon today en route to the United States, to which he had been called home to report to President Roosevelt.

London newspapers, which have been attacking Cudahy bitterly for the remarks he made in a recent interview, headlined the news of his recall and reprimand yesterday by the state department.

The Daily Mail today quoted Cudahy as saying "I do not retract one word from what I said."

He had said Belgium and other German-occupied territories now blockaded by the British navy would face famine this winter if they did not receive food from America. He also commented favorably on the conduct of the German army of occupation.

Grain-laden Vessel Towed to Port In Spain.

GIJON, Spain—(AP)—A crewless ship, heavily laden with grain, was towed today into port at Aviles by fishing vessels which found her drifting 40 miles from shore in the Bay of Biscay.

Advices from Aviles said the ship had been identified as the 8,000-ton Greek freighter Basilo Doustonis. (Lloyds register does not list a ship by that name.)

British Admit Advances Made By Duce's Men

Fascists March Toward Main Stronghold Of English In Somaliland; Approach Hills Surrounding Strategic City; R. A. F. Fliers Busy.

BULLETIN

ADEN—(INS)—Five persons were killed and 17 were injured today when Italian war planes raided the Red sea port of Aden. Property damage was slight.

(By International News Service)

CAIRO—Italy's blitzkrieg-style onslaught against the British Red sea stronghold of Somaliland is "continuing toward our main positions," an official communique revealed today.

While Royal Air Force planes were reported hurling heavy bombardments on Italian shipping and military positions in Africa, the statement tersely announced:

"In Somaliland, the Italian advance is continuing toward our main positions.

"On other fronts all is quiet."

The lightning Fascist advances against the Somaliland capital of Berbera already are assumed to be approaching the hills surrounding the strategic city where British forces are in a position to make a stand, latest information reaching Cairo indicated.

Authoritative information indicated that the situation between Berbera and the British Somaliland port of Zeilah, now in Italian hands, remains unchanged.

It was pointed out that a 150-mile stretch of waterless terrain between the two centers would present considerable difficulties to any Italian forces seeking to move from Zeilah against Berbera.

Meanwhile a British war communique told of heavy Royal Air Force attacks on Italian shipping and military positions in Africa.

"British bombers attacked shipping in Tobruk harbor, setting at least one vessel on fire. They attacked the Hargeisa-Mount Turgargon road (along which Italian troops were reported advancing in British Somaliland) and also the Karrim pass area.

"British aircraft also bombed Massawa jetty, anti-aircraft battery, air force barracks and floating dock and raided a fuel dump at Maiadaga.

"The South African Air Force bombed the Neghelli airdrome, destroying two and damaging two Italian Caproni planes on the ground and setting fire to trucks. Direct hits were obtained on buildings.

"All our aircraft returned from all operations. The British casualties number two plane crew members who were wounded."

French Pilots In British Raids

CAIRO—(U.P.)—French pilots operating with the Royal Air Force have bombed Italians advancing on the Hargeisha-Tugargan road in British Somaliland, a communique said today.

RAF planes dropped bombs on Italian anti-aircraft positions and troops in Karrim Pass on the Hargeisha-Tugargan road, the communique claimed.

British Royal Air Force planes left ships ablaze in a raid yesterday on Tobruk, Italian base on the Libyan coast, the air force

RAIDS: Germans Claim Hits Scored on Military Points

(By Associated Press)

BERLIN—The great British munitions works at Faversham, the Pobjoy aircraft works at Rochester, and government shipyards at Sheerness and Chatham on the Thames were bombed, the high command announced today, in a resumption of large scale raids on England.

Great fires and explosions resulted from attacks yesterday at Faversham and at Rochester, in Kent, the high command said, while "a great number of bombs of all calibers" hit the two shipyards in Kent where Britain repairs damage done to her ships.

Great damage also was done to the docks of England's big east coast seaport at Newcastle, the high command added, and a runway of the airport at Bistol, in the southeast, was reported destroyed.

The sinking by submarine of another ship of 8,700 tons was claimed.

Totalling their own victories in defense against air attacks, the Germans said 1,500 "enemy" planes had been brought down by anti-aircraft fire since the start of the war. Two British planes were shot down yesterday.

But it was admitted that in yesterday's British raids some civilians had been injured and buildings damaged in German territory.

The Nazi press took a rosy view of Germany's winter food prospects, but was less sanguine about occupied lands, over which it said

PREPARED: Chinese and Japs Ready for Indo-China Battle

(By International News Service)

SHANGHAI—Five crack Chinese divisions, including mechanized units, are prepared to march into French Indo-China in the event of a Japanese invasion, Chinese newspapers reported today.

They stated the troops during the past two days have been ordered from Kweichow to the borders of Yunnan and Kwangsi provinces, ready to move into Indo-Chinese territory.

Force Threatened.

LONDON—(INS)—Reports that Japan will resort to force if necessary to obtain naval and military bases in French Indo-China reached London today along with conflicting advices regarding possible French resistance.

The London Daily Telegraph reported from Hong Kong that the French Asiatic naval squadron, including submarines, left Indo-China for an "unknown destination."

It was belived, said the Telegraph, that the French naval units were taking up strategic positions to interfere with Japanese landing operations should an invasion of Indo-China be attempted.

In contrast to this forecast, which the Telegraph attributed to Chinese sources, the diplomatic correspondent of the London Daily Herald said the Petain government is expected to yield to the Japanese demands for bases in Indo-China.

This version said Japan—officially—is making no threats, but has warned unofficially that force will be used if necessary, and that there is small chance of successful French resistance.

The Telegraph, however, said an unofficial French-Chinese coalition is possible, since French and Chinese soldiers are massed on

President Inspects Portsmouth Navy Yard Armament

CHECKS COAST DEFENSE WORK IN 4 STATES

Receives Donovan Report of Recent Secret Mission To Great Britain.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.—President Roosevelt, accompanied by two cabinet members and his naval and military aids, arrived here today to open an inspection tour of New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut defense establishments.

Greeted by Chairman David I. Walsh, D. Mass., of the senate naval affairs committee, Mr. Roosevelt left almost immediately for a personal check-up on progress of the re-armament drive in the Portsmouth Navy yard.

En route here, Mr. Roosevelt conferred with William J. Donovan war-time commander of the fighting 69th of New York who recently returned from a secret mission to Great Britain on which he had been dispatched by Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox.

Although White House sources and Mr. Roosevelt, himself, refused to disclose the nature of Donovan's mission, it was understood authoritatively that he informed Mr. Roosevelt that his impressions gained in England indicate that there are good chances that Great Britain will be able to repulse any German blitzkrieg.

It was reported that Donovan believed that effectiveness of the Royal Air Force might be a deciding factor in British success in defending their island against the Nazis.

There was no indication, however, that Donovan was sent abroad to assay British prospect in the European struggle and Mr. Roosevelt showed no inclination to clear up the mystery.

White clad sailors and officers were lined up to give full honors to the president as he rolled into the yard, which had been operated on Bennett's island for 140 years.

The yard, specializing in submarine building and production of naval electrical fixtures, had 10 submarines building and three more authorized.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—One of America's foremost naval strategists—Rear Admiral Robert Lee Ghormley, assistant chief of naval operations—was en route to London today to send President Roosevelt confidential reports on the expected German blitzkrieg against the British isles.

He left Washington secretly, accompanied by two aides, Lt. Commander B. L. Austin and Lt. Donald J. McDonald, who will be attached to the London staff of Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy. The regular naval attache, Capt. Allen G. Kirk, will remain at the embassy.

Naval officials could recall no other peace-time mission of such a nature and with such a high-ranking officer as its chief.

Up and Down THE STREET

Workers at the Boy Scout office today were beginning to wonder just where Floyd Dent, area scout executive, and the five scouts who left early last Monday on a motor trip through the eastern part of the country, are by now. The party has been gone a week and as yet no word has been received from them at the office. According to their schedule, they were to be at Palisades park in New York on Wednesday. The party is expected to return home the middle of next week.

Mansfielders are taking the new Richland county T. B. hospital to their hearts and contributing a variety of unsolicited articles to help it off to a good start. County commissioners said donors have contributed furniture, trays, wearing apparel and other necessities since the county took over the Eleanor Thomas sanitarium for a hospital nearly three weeks ago. Some of the contributors have relatives in the institution and want to do their part to make it a success, commissioners said.

RABBI SILVER BACKS WILLKIE

Sticks to Previous Stand Against Third Term For Any Man.

(By International News Service)

CLEVELAND — Announcement by the Republican national committee in Washington that Cleveland's Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver had renounced his support of President Roosevelt after seven years and would support Wendell Willkie in the coming campaign was considered in Cleveland today as affirmation of Dr. Silver's strong stand against a third term for any man.

Reached at his vacation hotel at Moose Landing, Maine, Dr. Silver referred to a speech he made in Cleveland in March, adding that only the nomination of a strong isolationist by the Republicans would have caused him to favor a third term.

In the March speech, Dr. Silver said:

"The no-third-term tradition has been vindicated by a century and a half of American experience, and is particularly important in these days, when the indispensable, one-man rule is exalted in so many parts of the world at the expense of the Democratic faith in laws and institutions, rather than in persons, and it should not be repudiated."

NEW LORAIN BRIDGE READY FOR TRAFFIC IN ABOUT SIX WEEKS

(By Associated Press)

LORAIN — Traffic will begin rolling over the world's longest bascule bridge in about six weeks.

It spans the Black river, joining Lorain's east side with the downtown district. Although it will not be completed, it is planned today to open two lanes to traffic about Sept. 20.

The new bridge is one of the most important links in thoroughfare improvement along the Lake Erie shore. It carries traffic over U. S. Route 6 and state Route 2.

The bascule-type span opens upward in the middle with counterbalance weights of iron ore concrete aiding in the operation. It is 1,250 feet in length over all. Its cost will approximate $1,300,000.

Steel plants and ship yards up the river will require lifting the bridge many times daily for lake freighters. But the operation will take less than a minute.

The huge steel and concrete leaves are balanced delicately on huge trunnions or pivots. Ordinarily they will be moved by electric motors but 100-horse power gasoline motors are provided for emergencies.

Each leaf was built in a vertical position. Great cranes lifted the steel as far as they could reach. Then tripods were built on the leaves and the topmost pieces joined.

Once traffic starts across the new bridge, the old turntable span which has served the location for 40 years will be torn down.

The federal government furnished 45 per cent of the construction funds and the balance has been met by county bonds.

State to Spend $30,000 For County Road Treatment.

Work will start Monday on a $43,000 road surface treatment project in the Ashland division of the state highway department, with $30,000 of the money being spent on Richland county roads.

Murray D. Shaffer, division engineer, announced today that the contract for the work had been let to Louis Dehmer, of Tiffin.

Roads in Richland county to be treated are Route 181, between Route 30-S and Crestline. Route 39 between Lucas and Loudonville. Route 97, from Butler east to the Richland county line. Route 13 from Bellville south and Route 545 from Mansfield to Olivesburg.

Balance of the fund will be spent on roads in Ashland and Crawford counties, Shaffer said.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Federal bureau investigation agants and police investigated in secrecy today the explosion of an electric furnace at the Leece-Neeville company which recently received a government contract for airplane parts.

Company employes said the furnace was used for drying lacquer on armatures manufactured for airplane motors.

KENNEDY AND BIDDLE SEEN FOR CABINET

One Prominent New Dealer Opines Republican to Get Choice.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Two of President Roosevelt's crack European diplomats—Joseph P. Kennedy, of Boston, and Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, of Philadelphia — were named today in Capitol Hill gossip as surprise possibilities for appointment as postmaster general to succeed James A. Farley when he retires August 31.

Kennedy, now ambassador to London, is reported anxious to return to native shores. Biddle, arriving today in New York, is an ambassador without a country, since the Hitler conquest of Poland.

One prominent New Dealer forecasted to International News Service that the next postmaster general would be a well-known business man, not now prominently identified with the New Deal. He hinted the appointee might even be of Republican faith, thereby giving the Roosevelt cabinet an even stronger bipartisan character than at present.

This New Dealer, who asked that his name not be used, said: "I think I know the president and if I know him as well as I think, he will bring a new identity into the cabinet. The next postmaster general will not be closely identified in the public mind as a New Dealer and he may even be a Republican. If he is a Republican, it would strengthen the bipartisan character of the president's cabinet, following his appoint of the Republicans, Henry L. Stimson and Frank Knox, as secretary of war and navy.

"The president knows how to play shrewd politics and the postmaster general is historically a political appointee. I believe the president will bring a new face into his cabinet to strengthen his political position in the coming campaign."

Talk of either Kennedy or Biddle getting the appointment followed rumors that Frank C. Walker, New York attorney and longtime friend of the president, had no desire to enter the cabinet.

Other names mentioned include the new Democratic chairman-elect, Edward J. Flynn, of New York; social security Administrator Paul V. McNutt, of Indiana; Gov. Lloyd C. Stark of Missouri, and Sen. James M. Mead of New York.

Todd will leave here tomorrow for Plymouth, Ind., where he will meet his entire battalion, made up of National Guard units from Mansfield, Coshocton, Zanesville and Galion. They will bivouac at Plymouth Sunday night.

Not That It Matters

On Food for Europe and Ships to Bring Children Here From British Isles

—By JANE WILLIAMS

IN a speech in London this week John D. Cudahy, former ambassador to Belgium, told of the famine that will strike at Belgium and the other countries of Europe that have been subjugated, and said he considered it his duty to report to President Roosevelt that millions will starve this winter unless food supplies are sent to them.

The reason they will starve is because every bit of food raised in the subjugated countries is being taken to feed the German army and German civilians.

There is no more humanitarian nation in the world than America. We fed half of Europe after the World war. But this is one time that we must close our ears and our eyes to the misery of poor, starving, helpless people. We must not contribute food, either nationally or through our Red Cross, to the people of Europe.

Starvation is one of the most potent weapons of this war, horrible as it is. Starvation is the weapon that England will use against Germany. And because of the fact that Germany is in a position to take all food supplies away from the states under her domination, we dare not send food. Even were Hitler inclined to promise immunity to American food supplies, we dare not yield.

First, because Hitler's word is about as stable as an ice cream cone on the Fourth of July; and secondly, because the more food we take to the helpless victims, the more of their own product he can confiscate. Any way you look at it we would be helping to feed the German army and thus prolong the war.

If we want to fatten an army, it better not be the one most likely to take a pot shot a us.

* * *

WHICH brings up another question of humanitarianism that is quite likely to get us into the European war with both feet. The house this week approved taking steps by which we may send ships to England to exacuate children, on condition that we exact a promise of immunity from all the belligerents.

Have our sympathies paralyzed our sense of reasoning? American people are willing and eager to give sanctuary to the children of the beleagured British Isles—but sending our ships to carry them over here is something else again.

Relying upon the promises of Hitler and Mussolini to permit the children safe passage shows how very naive and trusting we can be. It's remindful of Little Red Riding Hood talking trustfully to the big bad wolf and exclaiming "O, Grandma, what big, white teeth you have!" What happened to Little Red Riding Hood quite likely would happen to the children entrusted to our boats and our care.

Then what would we do? If the message flashed over the wires that an American ship loaded with English children had been torpedoed and sunk, would we take it lying down, or would we declare war and send OUR boys to Europe to fight?

If you have a drop of Yankee blood in you, you will know the answer to that.

It seems to me that sending ships for the children is merely inviting a blow below the belt.

* * *

WAS interested to know the reaction of the younger men to Louis Bromfield's talk Thursday noon on conscription. The author (who left college to enlist in the French army in 1917 because he believed that democracy was worth fighting for, and who later was decorated for conspicuous bravery in the American lines,) not only urged military training by conscription, but said he believed every boy and man owed a year's training to his country in return for what it gives and guarantees to him.

I called several of the draft age men to whom I had talked last week when they expressed disapproval of the draft bill. And to a man they disagreed with Bromfield on these points:

1—They do not believe the present generation of Americans is soft because it hasn't had to fight for an existence.

2—They do not believe there is an international emergency which involves America's safety.

3—They believe an acceptable army can be whipped up when the actual need for it arrives.

The first two points may be debatable, although millions of us agree to both of them, but the last is certainly a dangerous fallacy.

These young men remember that Washington and his ragged army were victorious over British forces because of a high courage; they remember that the Union Army was victorious over the Confederate because our need to win was so urgent in order to save the Union; and they remember that we whipped up an army in short order which put the finishing touches to the World war, and they believe that in an emergency we can do it again.

There was a time when physical courage counted in an army, when a nation of courageous people could rely on its morale and high purpose to win a war. But that time is past. It is true that morale is needed. But today's wars are not fought with individual or mass courage, but with a geometrical precision of movement, with men skilled in the use of highly technical and mechanized equipment.

THE most fallacious of all the opposition to the draft is that the volunteer system hasn't been tried out sufficiently. Honestly now, boys, if they were begging for volunteers down in Central park, would YOU enlist? Do you know any of your friends who would? Even for just a year?

E. J. Wesson, Mansfield authority on American history, can tell you an interesting story of the volunteer system which was tried out during the World war. He tried to recruit young men from the New England universities—all of the famous colleges—and it was a heart-breaking and hopeless task. And America was already in the war then. After months of trying to recruit volunteers, the country turned in sheer desperation to conscription.

* * *

I LOVED the heart-warming candor of the chap who was twitted this week about the number of young men rushing into marriage to evade the draft. He said:

"Hell, I'd rather go to war. I've got a chance of getting out of it sometime. Why sign up for a life of discipline when you may be able to get out with only a year of it?"

middle eastern headquarters asserted today. Damaging attacks on Italian positions in British Somaliland, Eritrea and Ethiopia also were claimed.

Italians Report Raid On Berbera

ROME —(INS)—Serious damages to two British warships, bombing attacks on British positions in North Africa and an advance beyond the captured British Somaliland town of Odweina were announced in the Italian military bulletin today.

An air raid also was carried out against the British Somaliland capital, Berbera, according to the communique, which said:

"The British warship Resolution was seriously damaged, especially at the stern turret, and an enemy destroyer also was badly damaged by our air bombing attacks on August 1.

"In north Africa our air formations efficaciously bombed the railroad station at Nersamatruh and concentrations of motorized equipment at Sidibarrani.

"In east Africa our rapidly-marching troops occupied and advanced beyond Odweina in British Somaliland. Our aviation carried out a raid on the port and airport of Berbera, hitting a ship and setting on fire two enemy planes of the Gloster type on the ground."

Italians Seize British Property

ROME — (INS) — The Italian council of ministers met today with Premier Mussolini and authorized:

1. Seizure of all property either partly or wholly owned by British interests in Italian Africa.

2. Repair of war damages in "enemy" territory occupied beyond Italian frontiers.

3. A new branch of the ministry of the interior to coordinate a nation-wide garbage and refuse collection drive for war purposes.

Bitter Battle At Sea Reported

LONDON—(INS)—A bitter Anglo-Italian naval battle off the Balearic islands was reported today by the official Spanish news agency in a dispatch relayed to London by Reuters.

Authorities in London declared they had not been informed of any such naval engagement. Last week, another report of a battle between the British and Italian fleets in the same sector of the Mediterranean was denied by authoritative quarters.

DIPLOMATIC VIEW

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Withdrawal of British troops from Shanghai may mark an end to the British policy of appeasement in the Far East and a beginning of a stronger stand against Japan by both the United States and Great Britain, diplomatic circles believed today.

These sources said the withdrawal might have appeared on the surface to be another concession to Japan but might also have been done to clear the decks for action in a last-ditch defense of the British crown colony of Hong Kong.

Military and naval experts agreed with this view. They pointed out that the British forces at Shanghai, Peiping and Tiestin constituted only a handful of men in those exposed positions and probably would have been sacrificed immediately if actual hostilities had broken out. The same number of men, withdrawn to the fortified works of Hong Kong, would afford greatly needed reinforcements, at that post these experts said.

A stiffening of the combined American-British stand in the Far East was seen in the announcement by acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles that the British withdrawal from Shanghai would have no effect whatever on the American policies and actions in China.

GET FUGITIVES IN GUN FIGHT

Two Captured After Tossing Bullet-Pierced Body of Woman From Car.

STILLWATER, Okla. — (U.P.) — Highway patrolmen kept a close guard today over two fugitives, captured in a running gun fight after they had tossed the bullet-pierced body of a young, attractive red-haired woman from their car and critically wounded Ben D. Clark, Oilton, Okla., police chief.

Patrolmen identified the woman as Jeanne Culp, Asher, Okla. The men were identified by the patrol as Bill Hall, 26, fugitive from the Oklahoma state prison, and Joe Lovelace, 22, Lincoln, Neb., who told patrolmen he had escaped from the Nebraska prison farm.

Patrolmen said the fugitives had stolen two cars in their dash over north central Oklahoma highways late yesterday and abducted one man, Bill Glimp, farmer of near Drumright, Okla. Glimp suffered a slight wound when he was hit by a stray bullet when the fugitives were captured near Perkins, a small town near Stillwater.

Lovelace said the woman had been hit in the exchange of gunfire when the Oilton police chief and a constable first pursued the fugitives.

IN NEW SCRAP

County, State Settle Dispute Over Lucas Road Detour.

The second "tiff" in recent weeks between the state highway department and County Engineer Howard C. Sword had resulted today in the shifting of a state route detour at Lucas from a county road to route 30 between Mifflin and Mansfield.

Sword said he asked the state department to quit using the Mt. Zion road north of Lucas because the road was being repaired and the heavy detour traffic might damage it.

State traffic had been using the county road for several days while route 39 is being resurfaced near Lucas.

The Ashland division of the state highway department meanwhile changed its detour to take traffic from route 39 southeast of Lucas over route 603 past Charles Mill dam to Mifflin, then over route 30 to Mansfield. Flagmen were placed at both ends of the detour.

Several weeks ago Sword ordered the state to stop using a county road west of Mansfield for a detour, arguing that the extra traffic burden was ruining the road.

GERMANS CLAIM RAIDS SUCCESS

Say Military Objectives In Britain Hit By Bombs In New Attacks.

Germany could not be expected to be too greatly concerned.

The papers said an adequate food supply for Germany is assured, and that even the Balkan crops, "while not record breakers," are more than sufficient to feed the southeast.

(This varied with statistics released by the Rumanian institute of business research, which said the Russian grab of Bessarabia and the northern Bucovina included 35 per cent of the Rumanian wheat crop, 38 per cent of barley, 53 per cent of the rye and 23 per cent of corn—enough to have supplied Germany's import needs.)

While emphasizing Germany's food prospects, the German papers frankly were not optimistic about the occupied countries, particularly the low countries and France, which they said were being pinched by the British blockade.

Germany's first obligation is toward Germans, the press asserted. While Germany will be actuated by humanitarian motives to some degree, she cannot be expected to concern herself too much over populations which fought Germany and now face want because they have "ruined, neglected, or deserted" their own farms.

(This stand was emphasized in a German broadcast addressed to the United States and heard today by CBS in New York, in which the Nazi propagandist known as "Okay" suggested Britain could avert "a serious food shortage" without aiding Germany by relaxing her blockade of the continent.)

(Richard Allen, European delegate of the American Red Cross, returning to Vichy yesterday after a tour of 28 camps in German-occupied parts of France where French soldiers are held, said they badly needed food and medical supplies.

(Allen told of influenza and dysentery outbreaks and of diets of bread, soup and a few vegetables, with meat when they can find it. He expressed hope some aid might be permissible.

(The civilian population in the occupied area is not badly off yet, Allen said, but its situation will be critical by winter.)

DEFENDS RIGHT

Ohio U. Editor Denies Red Forces Run Paper.

ATHENS—(INS—Editor Robert L. Wertman, Lakewood, today defended the right of the Ohio University Post, campus weekly newspaper, to voice opposition to the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory military service bill.

Language used in a Post editorial attack upon the bill caused the Athens American Legion post to call the matter to the attention of President Herman G. James and to demand expulsion of students responsible.

Editor Wertman denied that so-called radical forces dominate the campus paper and insisted that persons of college age who would be affected by the military service measure have a "democratic right" to express their views in print.

The California division of forestry had to cope with 8,800 forest and brush fires in 1939.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, AUGUST 10, 1940.

Drive carefully tomorrow—and please mention this to any motorists who are unable to read.

It is now revealed that "God Bless America" was written twenty years ago—then put aside until help was needed.

Getting married to avoid the draft may turn out to be another of those "out of the frying pan into the fire" experiences.

Dilly-Dallying Should Be Stopped

WORD brought by visitors and observers in Washington is that a great reluctance to make any final decisions has come over congress. Eyes are kept on the daily mail and ears are cocked toward the talk of voters on farms and in towns and cities. There is an apparent desire to do only what it is thought may be wanted by a majority of those who will vote in November.

It is time for constituents to remind their elected representatives that that is not the way for congress to function. Unfortunately, not all senators and representatives were chosen for ability, but many are able men. Their job today is to face the problems confronting the whole United States—not just their own counties and states—to discuss as honestly and intelligently as possible what is best to do about them, to use their best judgment in this task, and to act promptly.

It is warm in Washington, and legislators are both uncomfortable and anxious. Tempers are short under such conditions. But calling each other "liar," "slacker," "rat" and other ugly names does the country they serve no good. Hitler has said that democracies are inefficient and their law-making bodies incompetent. Congress now has a good chance to prove him wrong.

Observe Those Yellow Lines

THOSE yellow lines that you have been seeing on some of the highways in the vicinity of Mansfield, and which eventually are to extend throughout the state—do you know why they were put there?

They are intended to warn against passing on grades and dangerous curves, in the hope of thus reducing traffic accidents which frequently occur at such places.

A campaign to acquaint motorists with these new markings has been in progress for the past couple of months and thousands of motorists have been warned by highway patrolmen, with a number of arrests for reckless driving in the more flagrant cases.

Under this new system of marking, which has also been adopted in some other states, the double white lines are to be abandoned and single or double yellow lines substituted to indicate stretches of highway where passing is prohibited because of danger.

Where there is a single yellow and white line the motorist is not to pass another car if the yellow is ON THE SIDE OF THE TRAFFIC LANE IN WHICH HE IS DRIVING. But he is allowed to cross the single yellow line if it is in the lane of traffic going in the opposite direction. A DOUBLE YELLOW LINE MUST NOT BE CROSSED, UNDER ANY CIRCUMSTANCES!

According to Col. Lynn Black, superintendent of the state highway patrol, the new marking system has been found to speed up traffic by allowing cars to pass when drivers can see an assured clear distance ahead and has reduced driving hazards by warning motorists against passing at dangerous points in the road.

With more general understanding, and observance, of the yellow lines a considerable reduction should be noted in the reckless passing that has resulted in many serious accidents on Ohio highways.

Switzerland's Difficult 'Independence'

BRAVE little Switzerland has just celebrated the 649th anniversary of its independence. There were bonfires on many Alpine peaks and torchlight parades in cities and towns. Candles or electric lights burned in windows everywhere.

The president of the Swiss Confederation and the commander in chief of the army joined in declaring to the people their determination to maintain Swiss neutrality and independence "to the end."

Millions of Americans admire the Swiss people and hope that they may maintain their freedom, but look with anxiety on their present plight, surrounded as they are by a strong and ruthless power that will not hesitate to attack them if it needs anything they have.

In the United States a Swiss consul, addressing a gathering in honor of their Independence day, listed some of the troubles they experience even now while they are neutral and "free." All Swiss connections with the outside world have been cut. All European ports used by Switzerland are closed by blockade or inaccessible. Thus a nation can play fair with its neighbors, be decent, mind its own business and yet suffer acutely as a result of the wars of others.

Finding Relief From Hay Fever

MORE RAGWEED than usual in the middle west is the sad prognostication of Ohio's state health director. There are now, however, various forms of relief.

If the hay fever sufferer has money enough and time enough off to go away, he can escape by going to a place where there isn't any ragweed. Or he can have his home air-conditioned. Or he can wear an air filter which is a nuisance but may help some.

A simple method of air conditioning for sleep is recommended. Close bedroom doors and windows, put a tubful of ice in the center of the floor. This keeps out the pollen, gives the air coolness and enough moisture for sleep.

And sleep, says the health director, is essential. If victims can keep their resistance up, they suffer less.

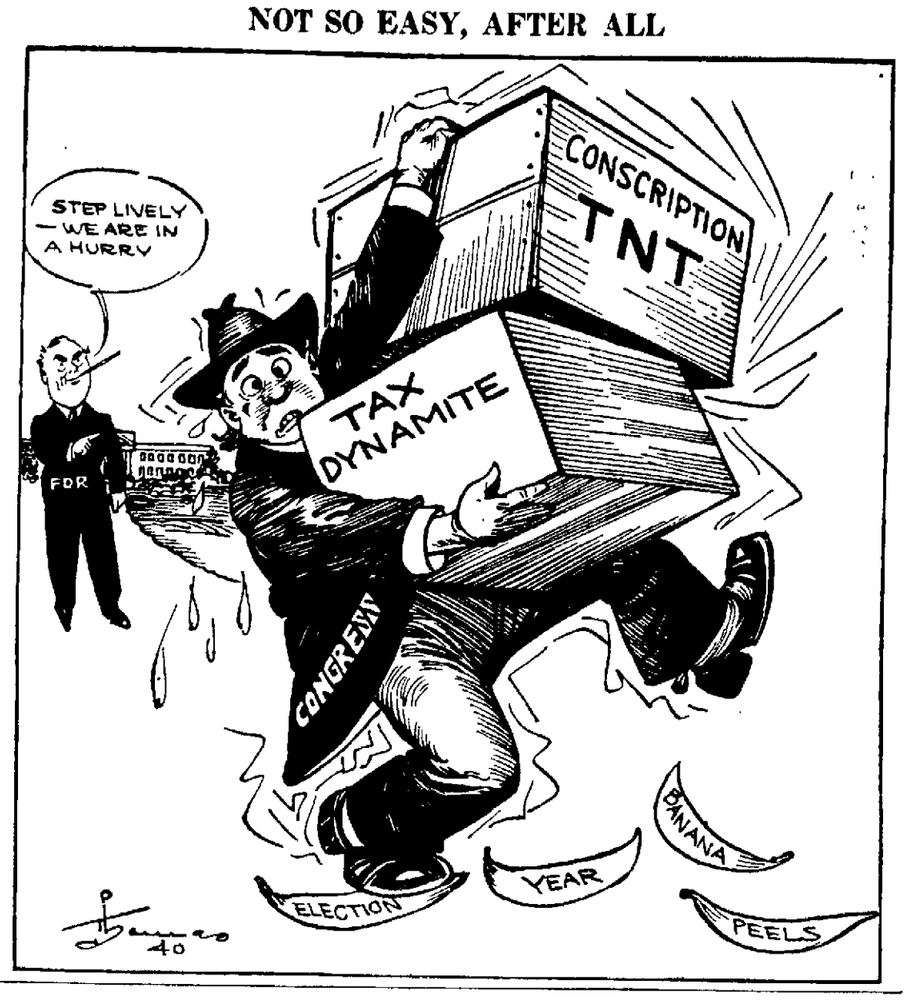
Hay fever is a disease that adds much to the sum of human misery and causes loss of millions of dollars in decreased efficiency and lost time. It should be taken seriously by its sufferers and those around them. Every possible ameliorating means should be made use of.

Just 400 years ago, in the summer of 1540, first public announcement was made of the Copernican theory that the earth revolves around the sun—which still stands against the idea that it revolves around any particular individual.

Then there is also the amateur botanist who wasn't sure about the name of the flowers but thought they were sal hepaticas.

"Say Wen" will probably be a popular expression out in Elwood, Ind., after the notification ceremonies.

NOT SO EASY, AFTER ALL



Jesse James, Great Humanitarian

By GUS W. DYER

Professor of Economics and Sociology, Vanderbilt University.

IT IS not unusual for a great dynamic personality to be misunderstood and misinterpreted by people of their own time. It is not unusual for society to cannonade its prophets while they are living and canonize them after they are dead.

It is not unusual for society to condemn and punish certain activities at one period, and commend and honor such activities at another period. As a result of such vacillation in human estimates, the meaning of words must change from time to time. The word "humanitarian" has undergone a radical change in its meaning.

Originally, a "humanitarian" was a lover of mankind, a philanthropist, who gave of his time and substance to help people. The idea of penalizing one class in the interest of another was fundamentally antagonistic to the conception of humanitarianism.

But today a great humanitarian is one who uses his power to take property from one class by legal compulsion and distribute it to millions as gifts. A great humanitarian now is one who gives away other people's money on a large scale. He assumes the role of redistributing the wealth of others.

* * *

UNDER this new conception of humanitarianism, who can deny to Jesse James, the noted bandit of the last century, the right to qualify as a great humanitarian? It is true that he ignored the injunctions of the Ten Commandments and the Constitution of the United States against the invasion of the sanctity of property rights. But this only demonstrated the fact that he was not bound by superficial restrictions, and believed that human rights should come before property rights.

In his efforts to bring about a better distribution of wealth, Jesse James raided only the "big boys," the economic royalists. He specialized on banks and transportation companies. He was dominated by the conviction that these great organizations had more than their share of the country's wealth. Hence a redistribution was demanded. He took it upon himself to remedy this evil, in part, by compelling the "big boys" to hand over to him a large part of their holdings.

He did not hoard the money he received. He used his increased "buying power" to bring prosperity to the communities that he and his associates would visit from time to time. The hardware business, the munitions business, the grocery stores, the hotels, the restaurants, the saloons, etc., were all helped by his increased buying power.

Jesse James was the friend of the poor. He never resorted to the policy of obtaining money from one group of the poor by indirect, under-cover methods in order to make gifts to another group. He never attempted to finance his humanitarian activities by selling notes made against the property and income of unborn babies. As a humanitarian he raided only the "big boys" still alive.

* * *

AN example of the humanitarianism of Jesse James is here given. On one occasion he and his associates stopped at a farm house to get dinner. They found that a widow was in charge of the little farm. The poor woman seemed so sad and dejected that Jesse asked her to tell him the cause of her trouble.

She told him the banker who had carried a mortgage for many years on her farm was coming over that afternoon to take over her farm since it was impossible for her to pay anything on the indebtedness. He asked her to tell him the amount of her indebtedness.

He gave her the full amount, and instructed her to take a receipt in the language he dictated. James and his associates concealed themselves near the house. The banker came at the appointed hour, and the widow paid off her mortgage. When the banker got a short distance from the house he was relieved of his money by the great humanitarian.

To the credit of Jesse James, he helped the poor without any expectation of a political or any other kind of reward.

Listen, World!

Conceit.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

CONCEIT is a curious thing. Most of us recognize but one form of it—being stuck up. But, indeed, that is the simplest form of conceit and the easiest to endure.

The most conceited people are not the vain and the boasting bimbos—

They're the lads and lassies with the inferiority complexes—

The family martyrs—

The chronic grievers and regretters—

The sensitive souls—

The people who are always misunderstood—

The terrible tribe of the self-conscious—

And so on and on, far into the blight.

Each and every one of these pests will indignantly deny that they are conceited. They will protest that they are the humblest and most harassed of God's children. And, to prove their point, they will thereupon proceed to drag out each doleful detail of their suffering.

The inferiority complex will relate at length how his life was blasted in youth. Having spent several hours in such gay preliminaries, he will get down to serious business and depict all the failures, frustrations, frets and flutterings of his subsequent career.

The chronic griever, regardless of how ancient his grief, will hang yards and yards and yards of crepe all over the premises.

The regretter will, for the millionth time, confess his transgression and parade his remorse.

The sensitive soul, the martyr and the misunderstood will insist on stripping their bleeding hearts and dish the dirt, ad lib, on the unfeeling brutes who done the dire deed.

As for the self-conscious, there is no end to their wheezes and their wails. According to them, they're nothing but broken flowers in public; but nothing can break them, or even bend 'em, if they once get your ear.

And having finished, which they rarely do, each one of these big cry babies will protest that there isn't an atom of conceit in them.

But, as a matter of fact, there's nothing else. For not one thought has concerned them during their endless recitals but the thought of self. All about them are people who have suffered ten times as much as they, but what's that to them? Nothing whatever. Their whines and whimpers, their hoots and howls alone have importance.

No braggart ever boasted of his exploits more loudly and long than they of their miseries. No egotist was ever more completely sunk in his complacent conceit. And, of course, that's why they are what they are—human hangnails.

If they would take their minds off themselves and focus on the world about them they could soon find a cure for their ailments. But nothing doing! For, if they were cured, how could they hog the spotlight?

I can stand plain stickum guys. I'm frequently one myself. But heaven preserve me from those beefers and bleaters with their addled egos.

Timely Editorial

Young Offenders.

Traffic statistics show that drivers of ages between 18 and 24 have the largest percentage of accidents. This is not because they are poor drivers. They are too good. They can make an automobile do tricks. They are most likely to take chances because of confidence in their skill.

Recently a youngster was brought into court who has been given 70 traffic tickets during his brief career as a motorist. The judge admonished him and told him he must spend four days in jail to think over his conduct. Judges are rightfully reluctant to put on careless but otherwise promising young men the stigma of jail records.

It would seem that the intent of the law was missed when a driver's license was left in the hands of a youth whose continuous law-breaking brought him 70 police warnings.—Detroit News.

Summary of Week's Happenings

Britain Repels Big Air Attack; Senate Votes to Call Guardsmen

—By ASSOCIATED PRESS

WHILE congress was debating conscription and hemispheric service for national guardsmen, Great Britain this week met the fiercest aerial attack of the war, thus far.

All day Thursday waves of Nazi bombing planes, in forces of 80 each, were hurled against British defenses and successfully beaten back across the English channel.

Britons had been studying the tide charts as highest tides of the month began coming in last Monday. They figured that if Hitler was going to attempt an invasion in August he would do it this week. It would be perilous for boats to attempt landings later at low tide.

The next best time now would be from Sept. 2 to 7, when tides will be highest again. After that period the mid-September equinoctial storms begin.

British officials revealed that during a recent month their aviators had dropped 33,000 bombs while Nazis dropped 68,000 on England.

The destruction wrought by these bombs was not apparent. Germans claimed several British ports were in shambles. But a check by the AP didn't support this claim.

And an AP newsman taken to Hamburg by Nazis couldn't confirm the British boasts that that city was in ruins.

* * *

Il Duce's Intermezzo.

NOT since the ferocious Fatimites conquered Egypt in 969 A. D. has an invader reached Egypt's lush Nile region from the West.

Western Egypt is a 400-mile stretch of dry defiles, of mountainous sand dunes that "walk" with the wind, of withering 120-degree heat.

Yet Il Duce seemed to believe, this week, that the quarter-million troops he had assembled near the Libya-Egyptian border could cross the sand. They were under the command of Marshal Rodolfo Graziani, one of the most adroit desert warfare leaders of history.

Observers believed the Italo-German strategy was to worry and distract Britain while Herr Hitler was winding up for his promised knockout punch.

If the Italians can overrun Egypt and capture the Suez canal it would represent a disaster of the first magnitude for the English.

At Home

Guard Call Approved.

Passed by the senate (71-7) the bill authorizing calling national guardsmen and army reserves for 12 months service anywhere in the western hemisphere, awaits house action.

Privilege of resigning was granted to married men or those having children dependent on them.

Approved by the senate military committee, the Burke-Wadsworth conscription bill was next in order for consideration, with lively debate anticipated.

There was disagreement in army circles on conscription. Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, said congress' delay in voting increased manpower "is a constantly growing embarrassment to the war department."

But Maj. Gen. James K. Parsons, commander of the third corps area, pooh-poohed the idea that the U. S. is "wide open to attack." He said 500,000 trainees are all that are needed.

British agents began negotiations to place "hundreds of millions" of dollars worth of additional arms orders in America.

* * *

Super-Highway's Test.

As congressmen wondered whether to conscript young men, more than 300,000 men who joined the armed forces by their own choice prepared to wage mock wars all over the United States this month. They included regular army, National Guard and reserve troops.

In southern Pennsylvania National Guardsmen tested the military value of the new $70,000,000 "super-highway" that pierces the Allegheny mountain ranges. Six huge howitzers were rushed toward Bedford at 40 m. p. h. but arrived behind schedule.

* * *

Assembly Line Warships.

Multiplicity of designs has been one of the banes of both aircraft and naval manufacture. The navy, for instance, has tried to make each new battleship, cruiser or destroyer a little better than its predecessor.

But now to save time and money the designs of both naval and aircraft are being standardized as far as possible.

The army air corps expects to have only six general categories of planes: interceptors, single-engine pursuits, twin-engine fighters, attack planes and medium and heavy bombers. Up to now there have always been at least 18 types.

Abroad

Cudahy's Question.

While on a visit to London this week John Cudahy, U. S. ambassador to fallen Belgium, asked newspapermen:

"If you gentlemen think the continent is a howling hell now, what do you think it will be this winter?"

Instead of blaming Belgium's woes on Nazi troops he said the conduct of the Germans had been exemplary. In fact, he stated, the Germans behaved better than U. S. soldiers would have done. He implied that the U. S. should try to get food in to the population despite any British blockade.

The London News Chronicle thought Cudahy acted in poor taste by making such remarks in England. It said that Cudahy, by implication, had made it appear "that Britain is responsible for famine in Belgium." (Britons are sensitive on this point.)

The state department, apparently, didn't like Cudahy's remarks either. It asked for a complete text of the interview.

Near Beer?

Germans, makers of famous beer, will drink a billion gallons this coming year—but the beer will be a special non-alcoholic kind cooked up by Der Fuehrer's chemists. The idea for it is attributed to the abstentious Hitler. How it's brewed is a secret, but Germans say it looks like beer, tastes like beer and contains the same ingredients—except the alcohol. Real beer will be available, but much harder to get.

* * *

Moving Day.

The industrial city of Krakow is in the section of Poland now annexed to the Reich. But another section occupied by Nazis, called the Government-General is not annexed. Next Thursday all the Jews in Krakow (about 40,000) will begin a forced mass migration east into the Government-General reservation. Das Schwarze Korps, organ of the Elite Guard, later said all Jews would be banished from the continent of Europe after the "German peace."

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Tallulah Bankhead, whose pop is Senator Bankhead of Alabama, has bought a new home in Rockland county, New York.

This has become prime territory for many of Broadway's best known people, including Jim Whittaker, composer and author (he was once married to Ina Claire); William C. Vogt, Helen Hayes (whose brick-walled home is a landmark for passing motorists), Milton Caniff, the artist; Frachot Tone, and Burgess Meredith. The Meredith place is commanded by a couple of artificial cannon, inspired no doubt by the fact that it overlooks the ground where the battle of Stony Point was fought. W. G. Vogt is a famous fisherman who has written books on the subject, and among his friends and fishing companions was the Indian Two-Guns White Calf, whose face is on the buffalo nickel.

When Whittaker was writing drama criticisms for a New York paper he sent Broadway into hysterics on one occasion by writing thusly: "When I married Ina Claire a year ago she told me she was an actress. There was nothing in her performance at the Empire Theater last night to bear out this statement."

* * *

I CAN'T verify this, but there is said to be a sort of "lost colony" of mountaineers in Rockland county who have hibernated there out of touch, almost, with civilization, since the Revolutionary war. They are pacifists, or deserters, and retreated into an obscure mountain valley rather than shoulder arms against the British.

A storekeeper who is in touch with them once told me that they have changed little since those days. They wear homespun garments. They have no cars, no electricity. They live unto themselves in their mountain fastness. They farm a little, hunt and fish. Every week or so one of their number goes, at night, to the store to make arrangements for such purchases as they must have. This storekeeper, who operates a sort of country cross-roads commissary about 25 miles from Manhattan, is the only "outsider" they deal with.

* * *

SOME of the best informal marine photography in the world is being done by people who live on tugboats in the Hudson River. There are quite a number of New Yorkers, some poor and almost poverty stricken, others well off, who compose a sort of floating community along the Manhattan waterfront. Their craft ranges from houseboats to old-abandoned barges. But all, or most, have cameras. They are able to obtain intimate views of ships and waterfront scenes that are unspoiled by the professional "staginess" of posed pictures. Today, for instance, three battleships of the U. S. Navy are lying at anchor below the George Washington Bridge. Off to one side is the hull of an old whaler. There are shad dories and oil barges. There are the arrested barks of waring nations, riveted to their slips, unable to move.

Now that the nights are warm people sit out on the decks of their barges, dancing to music from their radios or phonographs. Here is a wife hanging out the week's wash . . . there is a young man in dungarees courting his girl on the deck of a half-rotten tug. . . . It is a picturesque and at times a romantic aspect of waterfront life.

Daily Bible Thought

Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal.—Matt. 6:19.

Quotes

General Pershing, urging that the U. S. rush destroyers to Britain: "If . . . we can . . . help save the British fleet . . . we shall be failing in our duty to America if we do not do it."

Secretary of Navy Knox: "Today we cannot wait until war is upon us (to adopt conscription.) It will be too late."

Senator Sheppard: "Hitler will try to attack the United States. (Otherwise) I wouldn't be here trying to get the senate to approve this legislation."

People

Montreal's Mayor.

Furious French-Canadians of Quebec talked insurrection when conscription was thrust upon them in World war I. When this war started they were promised it wouldn't happen again. But, week after next, Canadians will register for duty on their home soil.

To Montreal's bulky, broad-nosed Mayor Camillien Houde this was a "measure of conscription." So he exhorted his residents "not to conform." Ottawa officials gasped that he "openly defied the law." Tuesday the mayor, once cozy with Fascists, was jailed.

* * *

Snifflers Mobilize.

As thousands of Americans began sneezing and sniffling this week the newly-formed Hay Fever Sufferers Society of America met in New York. Between sneezes the prexy cried:

"We're going to put 'teeth' into the law against having ragweed growing wild on your property; we're going to form ragweed detective squads to track down the enemy."

Also, he thought it un-American for wise guys to pipe "gezundheit" every time a hay fever victim sneezes. If they have to say anything, he said, it ought to be: "God bless you and America."

Crime

Extortion Explodes.

A nifty extortion plot was hatched by Walter Minx, a 23-year-old ornamental iron worker of Milwaukee. In his basement he had built a flimsy, seven-foot submarine of sheet metal, equipped with diving fins and oxygen tank.

Police say he and two relatives set off a light bomb in a Sears Roebuck store and threatened to plant a much bigger one if the manager didn't pay $100,000. The money was to be dropped in a box from a plane over Lake Michigan when two blinker lights were seen. Minx was to escape with the money in his sub. But he told police that in a try-out the "tin fish" didn't submerge. And while he was changing his plans, police traced filings from the bomb to his home.

* * *

Unhappy Robber.

All business, a man stepped up to a Los Angeles shop keeper and said politely, "This is a stickup. Kindly get into the back room." The attendant complied. But as the thief approached the cash register the phone rang. He answered, found himself taking a long order from a customer. Just as he replaced the receiver a woman asked to use the phone. She proved quite chatty. While she was still talking the disgusted bandit departed.

Announcement has been made that the annual Dillon family reunion will be held at Oak park on Sunday, Aug. 11. Dinner will be served at 12 o'clock.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, Aug. 11.

Sunday's horoscope holds testimonies of much liveliness, especially in affairs of youth and those romantically inclined. Both may be subject to sudden events or casualties demanding alertness, self-composure, quick action. With discretion all may be well and an extremely pleasant day enjoyed, particularly in connection with groups of a social or humanitarian character.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a very lively and generally pleasant year, although there is some hint of danger or unexpected events born of rash or uncontrollable motion or excitement. Such symbols spell crashes of one kind or another. There should be much benefit in working with groups of broad scope and welfare organizations. There should be profitable short journeys.

A child born on this day may be intellectually brilliant, with keen insight and much versatility. It may be rash, reckless and adventurous.

* * *

For Monday, Aug. 12.

Monday's astrological forecast is for a progressive and productive day, with promise of promotion, favors, and the attainment of high ambiitons at the hands of superiors, those in authority and in financial standing. These should be sought by well-directed effort but with precaution in handling all writings and documents, which may be detrimental if not properly perused.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of progress and prosperity, with preferment, promotion and favors from those in prestige and position. There is augury for the attainment of very high goals, with much pleasure and gratification. Read papers and documents cautiously. Beware extravagance and also litigation.

A child born on this day may have much capacity for reaching high places in life, being favored by those in power. It will likely be genial, generous and popular.

"The Authority on Authorities"

PREVENT COSTLY SETS

NO DEVELOPMENT of recent years has been more important as a safeguard against heavy sets of doubled vulnerable contracts than the introduction of what is called the "deductive double." The fact that such a double will be made on moderate strength by the player whose pass otherwise would close the auction is a preventative of the necessity of weak overcalls on the first round.

Over North's 1-Diamond, East would have been unwise to venture an overcall while vulnerable. If North happened to have a strong hand just a bit shy of an opening two bid, and South was just under enough for a bid as dealer, anything East bid would have been slaughtered. So he passed, but in so doing did not pass up the chance for a plus score, as both he and his partner were prepared to use the deductive double if necessary.

After South's 2-Diamonds got passed by North, East knew the opponents had no very great strength, and that therefore his partner had something of value, probably some of it in one of the major suits. His double assured his side of a plus score of some kind, as North and South could make only two in their suit. When the opponents went to three, they were in for a one-trick set, but the 3-Heart contract produced a score worth really more, when you consider the value of a partial toward the game which may come on a later deal.

"Vot you vant me take first? Don't you tink dose two couches goot for somebody sleep on? You vant bu-rows brought down for clothes? Vere I get dem?"

"One question at a time, Katie," I said, laughing. "The couches will stay here, for they will make excellent beds. We won't need any bureaus. We'll all live in suitcases and zipper bags, and the things we want to save in any emergency like fire will be packed in suitcases and boxes, carefully tied and piled up in corners of the library and study. We'll take out of here the big library table and the large chairs, and bring in smaller but comfortable ones for those who need them."

"Vere you goin' put me?" she asked.

"I thought I told you," I said. "You are to stay in here with the rest of the women. You may bring in two suitcases filled with your best things to put with the rest for safe-keeping. The rest which you cannot replace you may keep in the kitchen. But do not pack anything you could buy again here. We carry heavy insurance so we'll be able to replace most of the things you might lose. Now remember there's only one chance in a thousand of a fire breaking out, but my father is taking all precautions against that chance."

"Your father vun wise old boy," Katie commented, and I smothered a laugh in a hasty direction.

"One more thing, Katie," I said. "When you put your things in your suitcases and bundles, make a careful list of them."

"Me, I know vy dot," she said with a ludicrous air of sapience. "You got to make in-ven-tory of efery leetle ting for in-sur-ance company. All right, I feex. Now you tell me vich chairs go oudt, und den you go see sometings else. I kin manage dese tings."

"No doubt you can, but you're not going to alone," I told her firmly. "Take hold of the other end of this table and we'll take that first into the living room."

"But—" she began, then looked shrewdly at me.

"I guess dees vun of times you mean eet," she said and went to her end of the big library table, which, after some maneuvering and a bit of "huffing and puffing," we took into the living room. Then we took everything else from the library not needed for emergency.

"This will do now," I said finally.

"Yah, ven I go ofer her, clean her oop a bit, she all right," she answered, and I took her into my little study.

"We'll put this couch over in the corner," I said, "and then the only thing we'll have to bring down here is a single bed for Miss Fairfax. Miss Whitlock can use the couch and I'll clear off the table and some of the desk drawers for the things the nurse will need in taking care of her patient."

Purposely I was being a bit "formal" with Katie, for the look on her face when I spoke of Edith Fairfax to whom she has taken a violent dislike,—to do her justice, simply on my account—warned me that I must make this particular task a special mandate, or it would be neglected.

"Dot Fairfax vomans, she goin' be down here in dees room alone mit nurse?" she asked.

"Yes, she is too ill to have other people around her," I said, still with a sort of lofty formality which I only use with Katie when it is absolutely necessary for discipline.

"All right, eet your beesness," she said, "but I tink Mees Vitlock better keep her eyes peeled efery minnit, or her pa-shunt likely to open door und let Leslie crawl in."

"That will do, Katie," I said a bit curtly, yet with a weather eye to the crisis of work I was facing. "Now, please get this room and the library ready for moving furniture into it, and then come upstairs to the nursery I'll meet you there."

"Okay," Katie returned unabashed, and I went upstairs with the familiar "mingled emotions" of wanting to slap her for her impudence, and smile at her for her loyalty and cheerfulness.

LUCKY FOR LOVE

CHAPTER XIV

Before Marilyn went to bed, she wrote to her mother. Al had met her at the station. He took her to Clara's hotel. Clara said she was having a marvelous time. Clara might stay on a few days longer than she had expected, she was having such a marvelous time. She (Marilyn) had been to the Clarco company. Their offer had been renewed. She was going to enjoy working for Clarco, she knew. It was a golden opportunity. Love to Dad and Bill and a great big bucketful of it for Mumsy.

As she snapped off the light Marilyn wondered if Clara had come in, if she was scattering clothes about her room in her careless way, cold-creaming, patting, admiring herself in the mirror. How strange it all was! She and her sister were in New York, around the corner from each other, yet they might as well be a million miles apart.

Promptly at nine o'clock the following morning Marilyn reported to the young man at the information desk in the Clarco company's offices.

"Good morning. I'm Miss Marsh, Marilyn Marsh. I'm to work in the promotion department."

"Oh yes, Miss Marsh." The young man was blond, gangly and pleasant. "Mr. Dawson spoke to me about you. Come this way, please. I'll introduce you to Miss Cook. She's in charge."

* * *

Along a corridor of frosted glass and doors and printed names and titles. After what seemed to Marilyn a half-mile walk, the young man stopped and opened a door marked "PROMOTION DESK." They were in a long narrow room. Desks marched four abreast down the stretch of it. At the far end, a little apart, was a larger desk facing the others. A woman sat at it, head bent over a pile of papers before her. Instinctively Marilyn knew the woman was Miss Edna Cook.

Arrived before the desk, the young man stood, virtually at attention, waiting for the woman to become aware of their presence. Presently she glanced up. Marilyn thought, "I've never seen such eyes. They seemed to reach right down inside you and appraise everything there is of you at a glance. The woman's hair was black and sleek as a bird's wing. Her features were so fine they might be called delicate. What curves her mouth showed had been cosmetically applied, but almost as artfully as nature could have drawn them. She was perfectly groomed and aware of it. To guess her age would have been guessing in the dark.

"Yes, Mr. Walker," she said, crisply, to the young man from the information desk.

"Miss Marsh is here, Miss Cook." The young man appeared nervous. "Mr. Dawson told me to bring her to you when she reported."

"Thank you. That will be all, Mr. Walker."

The young man backed away. Apparently he was glad to be doing so.

"Miss Marsh," the woman fixed Marilyn with those dissecting eyes. "I understand you are coming to work in the promotion department."

"Yes, Miss Cook. Mr. Watson talked with me about coming." Unconsciously, Marilyn stood at attention too.

"I understand that you have had no previous experience in the work."

"No, I- I—"

"You have worked, though. You've been a wage-earner."

"Oh, yes," brightly. "I was in the book department of the Bon Ton—that's a department store in Millville. Millville is my home."

"Good. Then you understand a position is a trust placed in you by the company which employs you. I prefer not to inquire into your educational equipment. It might prejudice me, and I want to be free to direct without prejudice. Personally I prefer to deal with college men and women, but the nature of our product, Clarco, is such that intellectual appeal is not in order. We reach for mass, not class interest. Our keynote is simplicity. Highly trained minds find difficulty in being simple."

Marilyn thought, "Is she trying to tell me I'm a mental pigmy or she is trying to put me at ease. I wish I knew.

Miss Cook rose. She was tall, erect, almost martial.

"And now, Miss Marsh," she said, "if you'll come with me I'll take you to your desk. You'll find it fully equipped. I shall designate Miss Garvan, who occupies the desk alongside yours, to acquaint you with the routine."

* * *

Marilyn followed Miss Cook along the aisle between the desks. She felt as though she were marching. She felt eyes sliding sideways to catch sly glances of the little procession, but heads were bent over their work. The rustle of paper and the hollow hum of noiseless typewriters never ceased.

Marilyn's desk was halfway down the long room, next to the window. She was grateful it was so. It gave her an inland feeling, a mite of remoteness. Kathleen Garvan, the girl at the next desk, a fiery redhead with Irish eyes and a pert nose, was friendly, anxious to help.

"Don't mind the office feeling like a factory," she said in a low voice, keeping up a pretense of instructing her neighbor. "You get used to it quickly. I was scared stiff my first day here. Now I rather like it. Concentration speeds up your work. Take this memo."

She handed Marilyn a sheet of paper containing a single sentence.

"It calls for six six-word slogans. You write six sentences of six words each telling the world about Clarco. I worked on it all yesterday afternoon. Must have written a thousand of them. Not one clicked. You can practice on my memo until you get one of your own. They usually come first thing in the morning and two or three times during the day.

When you're not working on memo orders you fill in with copying, typing letters and various office details assigned to you."

"I'm afraid I'm not very fast at typing," Marilyn said, tuning her voice to the low note set by Kathleen Garvan. "I'm terribly out of practice."

"You're not required to be fast in the beginning," reassuringly. "After all, we're employed as copywriters not as stenographers. But you're expected to pick up speed. One thing you must be, though, is accurate. Miss Cook can scent a mistake almost before you put it on paper, and she loathes erasures. You have to be neat about everything you do, and you have to follow the prescribed forms or you'll be in trouble. Miss Cook should have been a general in the army. She's God's gift to discipline."

* * *

At four o'clock in the afternoon Marilyn closed her desk and followed the outgoing tide to the street. She had spent the entire day practicing on Kathleen Garvan's memo. No office boys with typed orders stopped at her desk.

Her neighbors went about their work in total disregard of her isolation. Miss Cook did not seem to know she was in the room. Toward the end of the day she felt tearful, but she set her teeth and tapped away at Clarco six-word slogans. She must have filled enough sheets of copy to paper a good-sized mansion.

Al Martino waited for her at the entrance to the building.

Brooklyn Veteran Turns In Best Hurling Performance.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

IT MUST be a new heat wave that's causing the red hot pitching in the major leagues these days.

The program yesterday, four-sevenths of which was produced at night, included a two-hit game, two four-hitters and a five-hitter. Coming on top of Johnny Whitehead's short-form no-hit stunt and other fine flinging earlier in the week, this constituted nothing less than a siege against the batters.

* * *

The most important pitching development of the day, however, was not the best performance. It was the return of Gene (Junior) Thompson to service for the Cincinnati Reds for the first time since he was spiked in Brooklyn July 23.

He signalized his return by beating the St. Louis Cardinals 7-2 and giving the National league champions a record of two victories in a row for the first time since July 27, when he should have taken his regular turn and couldn't.

The day's best hurling was turned in by Whitlow Wyatt, lean righthander of the Brooklyn Dodgers, who shut out the Boston Bees 1-0 with four hits, striking out seven and scoring the game's only run himself. Dick Errickson gave a valiant rebuttal, eight hits, but three singles in the eighth licked him.

Another four-hit pitching show was the one of Truett (Rip) Sewell of the Pittsburgh Pirates put on in beating the Chicago Cubs 6-2. He faced only 30 batters and might have had a shutout except for Bill Nicholson's 19th home run with one on in the seventh.

The triumph raised the Pirates into the first division for the first time since the early days of the season and dropped the Cubs out of it for the first time in the same period.

Red Ruffing and Steve Sundra of the New York Yankees collaborated in the two-hit pitching performance which subdued the Philadelphia Athletics 2-0. Ruffing started and gave up one single in the first inning, then voluntarily retired with one out in the third because of a pulled muscle in his left leg. Sundra, who hadn't won a game all year, then took over and allowed only another single for the remainder of the route. The Yanks themselves got only eight hits.

Each of the other games in the American league were decided in the last half of the ninth.

* * *

Lefty Ed Smith of the Chicago White Sox stifled the slugging Detroit Tigers with five hits, and struck out 11, but it took a double by Mike Kreevich behind Smith's single and a sacrifice to bring home the deciding run—the only earned run of the game—in a 3-2 victory.

The St. Louis Browns saved Detroit from loss of the league lead by coming from behind to down the Cleveland Indians 4-3. For six innings Mel Harder held St. Louis to two hits while his mates got him a 3-0 lead. Walt Judnich's 21st home run with one on helped erase that advantage and in the ninth Harlond Clift's double, a scratch single by Don Heffner and a lusty one by Bob Swift scored the winning run.

Merchant Girls Top Ashland, 12-2

Squeezing 12 runs out of 11 [illegible] the Mansfield Merchant Girls softball club handed the Crescos team of Ashland a 12 to 2 walloping last night at Brookside park in Ashland.

Clark and Whiteman toed the slab for the Mansfielders, allowing the Crescos five hits. Stattler was on the mound for the Crescos.

* * *

Herrick of the Merchants led the hitters by banging out four hits out of five trips to the plate. Moore, Ashland leftfielder poled out the longest hit of the game, a triple.

Braves Score 10 Runs In Early Innings, But Lose Contest.

BLOWING an early 10 to 1 advantage, the Mansfield Braves suffered a 14 to 10 whipping from the Mudhens in an Ohio State league contest at Tiffin last night.

Mansfield sent 14 men to the plate in the opening frame and added up a commanding 9 to 0 lead, but the Braves' mound corps failed to halt the Mudhens.

The Braves, with Rex Benton on the hill, will engage the Mudhens in a single tussle at the Fairground at 8:30 p. m. today. The game will follow a Knot Hole league tussle between two teams from the Friendly House loop. This game will start at 6:30 p. m.

* * *

After Mansfield had built up its lead, the Mudhens started pounding Tony Drewek, and Manager Dewey Stover rushed George Laurila to his aid in the fifth, but it did no good.

Tiffin tallied once in the third, added six runs in the fourth, four more in the fifth to forge ahead, 12 to 10. The winners added single counters in the seventh and eighth to ice the affray.

Harry Seigbert led the Braves' 15-hit attack with three singles while Herb Woodten added a home run and a single to the total. Hal Hundemer, Gene Woodling and Laurila contributed two hits each.

* * *

Mansfield secured all its runs off Warner and when Myles Thomas, Tiffin manager, took over in the second he blanked the Braves the rest of the way. Tiffin pounded out 17 hits with King and Sanders hitting circuit clouts.

The Braves travel to Fostoria to battle the last-place Red Birds in a doubleheader Sunday. The first game will start at 1:30 p. m.

RECEPTION FOR COMMANDER OF G. A. R. STAGED

Patriotic Groups at Galion Join In Honor Paid to Thomas Ridenour.

GALION — Flags and flowers provided a colorful setting at the Galion armory, Friday night, for the reception honoring Comrade Thomas Ridenour, Civil War Veteran of Ohio, who this summer was elected commander of the Ohio Department of the G. A. R.

Four patriotic organizations of the city allied with the G. A. R. acting as hosts for the affair, included the Women's Relief Corps, the Daughters of Union Veterans, the Sons of Union Veterans, and the Germaine Neiling Junior club. C. C. White and Mrs. Carl Coover were assisted by several other members of the four groups in planning the reception.

Among the guests were national, department and district officers of G. A. R. organizations. These, together with local officers, were in the receiving line. The American Legion and its auxiliary were welcomed as guests.

Mayor W. M. King of Galion welcomed the audience after the opening exercises which included the singing of America; invocation by Alfa Cox; the singing of the Star Spangled Banner; and the salute to the Flag. His greeting was followed with the singing of "God Bless America."

A varied program was presented, consisting of guitar numbers played by Pauline Phillips; tap dance specialty, Junior Heiby and Kathleen Watt; xylophone number, Betty Stevens; reading, Wanda Taylor; guitar selection, Mary Louise Fogel; comedy act, Kathleen Watt; selections by the American Legion Drum Corps.

Among those who spoke, including special guests, were Elizabeth Hartung of Toledo, Department president of the Woman's Relief Corps; Beatrice Vogel of Chillicothe, department president of the D. of U. V; Lowell Thompson, department commander of the Sons of Union Veterans; Bertha Droz of Mansfield, national president of the D. of U. V; Gilbert Plack of Galion, commander of the American Legion.

Then followed a variety sketch by Kenneth Stinehelfer; piano number, Eileen Burkley; harmonica number, Franklin Berry; cowboy songs, Lewis Girton; reading, Juanita Plack Prim.

The presentation of gifts to the honored guest and other guests concluded the program. Those honored thus were Comrade Ridenour, the presentation being made by C. C. V., by Clara Beach; the department secretary, Edith Byrd of Toledo; the department treasurer, Mable Ginder of Toledo.

As a surprise to Beatrice Coover in honor of her wedding anniversary, she was presented a gift from the group by Eva Berry.

TRADERS LEAN TOWARD BUYING SIDE IN MART

Demands Highly Selective; Gains Are Fairly Well Distributed Among Stocks.

NEW YORK — Traders leaned slightly to the buying side in today's market.

While demand was highly selective, gains of fractions to a point or so were fairly well distributed.

Financial quarters noted figures of the federal reserve board indicating the country's department store sales declined more than seasonally in July.

Store activities for the week ended Aug. 3, however, were placed at 5 per cent above the corresponding period last year, and the total for 31 weeks of 1940 topped the corresponding time in 1939 by 4 per cent.

Holders of farm implement company shares were encouraged by reports domestic sales in this industry lately have been running about 15 per cent higher than a year ago.

JAIL 2 WOMEN

Police Make Arrests After Charges Made In Court.

Three colored persons, two women and a man were held in jail today for investigation in connection with what Police Chief Meade K. Bates said was soliciting for immoral purposes.

The arrest of the trio on West Sixth street was made early this morning by Bates and Patrolman Eugene Hartnett and came closely on the heels of a charge made by a witness in municipal court yesterday that women in the north end were soliciting for immoral purposes without fear of arrest.

Bates said the trio, all of whom gave their homes as Columbus, would be questioned sometime today.

FOOD SUPPLIED

British Say 1,000 Ships to Prevent Starvation.

NEW YORK — (NS) — Revealing that 1,000 ships are engaged in shuttling food and war supplies between America and England, British purchasing commission officials today maintained the Germans haven't one chance in a thousand of starving the British Isles by blockade.

Great Britain at the present time has more steamers at her disposal for the carrying of supplies than she had at the outset of the war, representatives of the commission declared at a press conference.

To date, England has already received 2,000 planes from the United States while 8,109 planes are on order, it was revealed.

Total value of war orders placed in America by the British now exceeds $2,000,000,000 it was stated.

BIG MORTGAGE

CHARDON — (AP) — One of the largest mortgages ever recorded here is the $5[illegible],000 transaction between the Cleveland Electric Illuminating co. mortgagor, and the Guaranty Trust company of New York. It is security for a new bond issue refunding old bonds and providing the power company with funds for new construction.

WPA DEFENDS WORK ON JOB

it would be some time next week before WPA would have the crossing graded.

Carothers charged also that the report made by Murray D. Shaffer, division highway engineer at Ashland, that "all materials on the job met with state specifications, was incorrect and that the highway department had rejected the contractor's sand.

He said he was informed that WPA engineers here had threatened to close down the project until concrete was delivered on the job.

He further charged that the contractor had "not lived up to his contract" to provide a master form setter to direct the work of the WPA men, and that to speed up the operation the WPA supervision had set up two blocks of forms before the skilled workmen were put on the project.

Stander, however, said today that two samples of sand had been submitted to the state and one of them was turned down. No sand was obtained from that source, he explained.

He pointed out that the forms had been taken to the job by WPA workers and state highway workers before the time anticipated for putting them down. He said that was the reason his form setter was not on the project.

He reiterated his statement of a week ago when he said that grading had not progressed far enough along to let his workmen move ahead with pouring concrete.

Citing the North Walnut street intersection, which is not expected to be completed until next week, Stander said his men could not move ahead with the concrete work until it is completed. Workmen reached Walnut street in concrete pouring today.

Still boasting the typically American characteristics of "the family next door" which has already won them millions of followers, the Bumsteads-Dagwood, Blondie, Baby Dumpling and Daisy — are at the Madison in their latest of their film series—"Blondie Has Servant Trouble." Arthur Lake, Penny Singleton and Larry Simms play the roles. The co-feature is Dead End Kids and Little Tough Guys in "You're Not So Tough."

Loy-Powell Team.

"I Love You Again" begins today at the Ohio with Myrna Loy and William Powell in the leading roles of this hilarious romantic comedy. As usual Loy and Powell form a perfect team for an entertaining story. Edmund Lowe and Frank McHugh are also in the cast. The story is one of an amnesia victim and his many predicaments home and abroad.

"Dr. Kildare's Strange Case," fourth in the popular series, which opens Sunday at the Ritz, revolves around the activities of the promising young intern, Dr. Jimmy Gillespie and the nurse, played respectively by Lew Ayres, Lionel Barrymore and Laraine Day. The co-feature is "Buck Benny Rides Again," presenting one of the best comedies of the year. Jack Benny, Ellen Drew, Andy Devine, Phil Harris, Dennis Day and Rochester are in the cast.

Gay Comedy and Mystery.

Beginning Sunday at the Park is the sparkling comedy "The Doctor Takes a Wife," in which Loretta Young and Ray Milland are co-starred. This is a hectic story of a young medico who hates career women and a young author who writes books in praise of spinsterhood. The second attraction is "The Saint's Double Trouble," with George Sanders in the title role, of Simon Templar, colorful hero of Leslie Charteris' famous crime stories.
